

HOW FAR WOULD YOU GO TO RID THE WORLD OF HUMAN TRAFFICKING?

Randall Betts and his crew of highly-trained former military troops are all over the globe eradicating the immoral agents of a vast corporation profiting from human trafficking, and the more they destroy the more they discover.

But the enemy is well-financed, well-connected, and wickedly determined to stop Betts and his CIA connections in this all-out battle for the survival of a vile, maleficent enterprise. As long as their client's depravity can be satisfied, the enemy will stop at nothing to accommodate the obscenity.

From the rainy dark streets of Algiers to the shores of Lake Victoria in Kenya, Betts and his people face death and destruction in a bloody tale of seeking out the enormous variety of evildoers preying on the small and weak. In quiet suburban neighborhoods and remote towns in east Asia, Betts takes no prisoners in his quest to stop this scourge, but it may not be enough.

Be prepared to discover the many faces of human trafficking in this harrowing story of modern-day anguish and corruption. Randall Betts combines military might and savvy intelligence operators to extinguish this worldwide threat, but how far can he go? The title of the book reveals that no matter how much one tries to hide greed and devilry, the evil will eventually be discovered.

How much would you sacrifice?
